

I am a flight attendant. I do not like the idea of cell phone use onboard the aircraft for the most part because it has not been tested that it is 100% safe and does not interfere with any aircraft systems. My life and safety is the most important factor here, not someone needing to use a phone. The second reason I'm opposed is it will bring disturbance to other passengers. No one wants to sit and listen to someone else yapping on the phone the whole flight. If it's tested that transmitting devices do not interfere, and I'm 100% safe, then only emailing and text messaging should be approved, in order to keep the peace of the aircraft.
